CONGRESS MAY TAKE HAND IN THE NAVAL SQUABBLE

Members Intimate That the Brown- son Rixey Affair Will be Argued on the Floor

SENATOR HALE BACKS ADMIRAL

the Administration is Probably in for a "Roasting" from Even the Republicans Who Have Heretofore Supported It.

Washington, Dec. 28—From the lips of Senator Hale and other members of the upper branch of Congress concerning the Brownson-Rixey affair, it is evident that the administration will come in for considerable criticism on the floor of the body after the holidays.

What the effect of the episode will be upon appropriations for the increase of the navy and upon the "personnel bill" designed to increase the pay of all officers and men of the army and navy, marine corps and revenue service is problematical.

From the strong feeling displayed,
however, it is regarded as a fair prediction that the recommendations of the President will be scanned with unusual care, and that none but absolutely necessary appropriations will be made. The Army and Navy Register in its issue today, says:

"The position taken by Rear Admiral Brownson is approved by line officers as a justifiable protest against what is regarded as an encroachment upon the rights of command vested in the line personnel."

CURRENCY

Plans to be Increased and the U. S. Government.

Washington, Dec. 28—The senatorial triumvirate of the finance committee consisting of Senators Aldrich, Cahoon and Hale, to which has been added the task of preparing financial legislation, has almost completed its work. The plan evolved provides for additional banking currency of large denominations that now in circulation, and backed by a guarantee of the United States government. What amount shall be placed on the notes issued by each bank, whether to the full extent of its capital, or proportion thereof, is one of the details not definitely determined.

It will be in such volume as to adequately meet such conditions as recently prevailed is however in. Before its introduction the bill will be submitted to a caucus of Republican senators. Allison will introduce the bill.

MOTHER

RIFICES HER LIFE THAT HER FATHERLESS CHILDREN MIGHT NOT STARVE.

Proud to Beg, She Denies Herself
Scraps of Bread to Give Her Little Flock.

New York, Dec. 28—Too proud to ask for help from her neighbors, Mrs. Phyllis to today paid for the sacrifices made, that her three fatherless children might have a bite to eat on Christmas day, when she died at Eastern District Hospital of starvation. For days Mrs. Friszo had been unable to feed her little flock mere scraps of bread. Even then she did eat her own share to be sure might have food for Christmas.
That day the crusts were all fed to her children, while she continued fast. The next day neighbors entered to stop the wails of her children found her dying.

BRIDGE FELL KILLING ONE

Philadelphia, Dec. 28—With scores of men clinging to it, the false work of the Walnut Lane bridge fell a distance of 147 feet Friday, killing Martinson of Germantown, injuring her man so badly that he will die, maiming ten others.

The bridge is the only concrete span in the world and one of the largest any structure in the country. It has been completed for several weeks.
Friday the work of removing the bridge was started.

Suddenly there was heard a crunching of timbers, but most of the men posed it was caused by a part of work of destruction on another of the bridge.

NO CHANGE

TO BE MADE IN TAFT CAMPAIGN
MANAGEMENT OR HEADQUARTERS.

VORYS IS NOT DEPOSED

And Will Continue to Direct
of the War Secretary's Columbus.

Washington, Dec. 28—In spite of the fact that Secretary Taft has stated to Washington newspaper men officially that there would be no change in the managing head of his campaign for the presidency, some of the newspapers that are favorable to other candidates continue to print rumors that A. J. Vorys, the Taft manager, is to be deposed.

The report has been printed so persistently that cognizance was taken of it Friday and the announcement can be made with authority that there is to be no change in managers and that nothing of the kind has ever been contemplated. The statement comes with such authoritative backing that there is no question either as to its authenticity or as to its official character.

I can be said with equal authority that added importance is to be given to the Columbus headquarters by reason of the fact that no separate headquarters for the Taft campaign will be maintained in Washington. Of course, Secretary Taft will be obliged to add to his personal list of employes so as to handle the large personal correspondence and other details that arise from his candidacy,

DRUCE COFFIN GUARDED AGAINST ROBBERY

THE GRAVE OF THOMAS CHARLES DRUCE AT HIGHGATE CEMETERY.

London, Dec. 28—Interest in the famous Druce case has been transferred from the police court to Highgate cemetery.

Following the decision of the home office to permit the opening of the grave of T. C. Druce, over which the long legal warfare has been waged, most extraordinary precautions have been taken by the authorities to prevent any tampering with it.

A large force of police was sent to Highgate cemetery and occupied positions at all the approaches. In addition a special detachment of police was drawn up around the tomb itself, which is rapidly being enclosed by a high board fence. When this work is completed the structure will be roofed over, with the object of preventing any unauthorized persons from witnessing the opening of the coffin, which will definitely establish whether it contains a roll of lead or the body of Druce, as claimed by the defendants.

has made him additionally popular.
Enthusiasts do not make any discrim-inations as to how and when to call in the war department.

The secretary has fled from it all for a day or two, in which time he will have finished his annual report,
and probably his speech to be delivered in Boston on the 30th inst. Persons who asked for advance copies of this speech, which, it is believed, is to be one of great public importance,
were informed Friday that the secretary had not even begun to dictate
it yet.

Boise, Idaho, Dec. 28—
Darrow, chief counsel for George Pettit, on trial charged with guilt in the killing of former governor Steunenberg, has retired from the case for the present at least, account of his health. He left for Los Angeles, where he will submit an operation for abscess in the die ear. The abscess has given trouble for the last six months. A he delivered his opening statement that, if the operation was not performed his life would be endangered.

There is little probability that he will be able to return to Boise in time to make the closing address for the defense. Former Congressman Edgar Wilson will be in charge of the defense.

fant child, and swallowed a dose her-

They have plenty of theories and facts. Even the cause of death is unknown. The medical officers have examined the body, have completed their work. So much being lost there is a likelihood the slayers of the woman may never be punished.

Three distinct theories affect the case are put forth today. The first is that the woman was slain
one of a half hundred yachts where the body was found. The second is that she was murdered where in New Jersey, and her brought to the place where it was found in a wagon, while the third is that she died as the result of an illegal operation after which her was taken to the swamp to be disposed of from the scene of the crime.
One theory resulting from the covery of a wound under the

being driven into her brain

AFTERNOON GOWNS

How to Keep Away the Wrinkles

Do not wait until your face is like a piece of crumpled parchment, then rush to a beauty doctor for relief—begin with the very first tiny wrinkle that shows itself and work on it until it disappears. Massage is the greatest cure yet discovered, and with the help of good creams, proper bathing, etc., a woman, in her own home, can do much to alleviate this most common affliction.

Massage, however, must be done properly, for there are certain swift, rough movements that will bring on rather than make way with wrinkles. You must rub across, not in the wrinkles. One of the most simple illustrations of this is a piece of soft tissue paper that has been crumpled up. Now, rub the creases out of it. You would rub very gently, would you not? You would rub up a little, then down a little. Just so must you treat your face.

If your skin is very oily do not use an astringent so strong that it eats up all the natural oil and leaves the skin dry and hard. This will induce wrinkles as quick as anything. Rather, apply a little camphor-water, use no greasy soaps, steam the face once a week, making sure that these simple remedies are of no avail before more heroic methods are adopted.

The most difficult wrinkles to get rid of are those that come between the eyes. Generally this set of wrinkles comes from a long established habit of frowning. Many women use plasters for this purpose, and the treatment has been very successful in numerous cases. They are to be obtained of any good druggist, and should be applied at night in such a manner as to smooth out the wrinkles, keeping the flesh perfectly flat. Massage is also splendid, and frequent applications of sour cream is beneficial. In fact, sour cream is a good face wash and is easily obtained. Used once a day it is said to be very nourishing to weakened tissues.

In order to get the full benefit of massage, it must be done systematically and the face prepared before the cream is applied. First, wash with very warm water to which a few drops of benzoin have been added. If soap is used, it must be pure and well rinsed off, as it is necessary for the pores to be open in order to derive any benefit from the massage. Then put on plenty of cream, not a tiny scrap, but cover the face liberally and rub and rub, gently but persistently, until the skin has eaten up all the cream. Night is the best time for this practice, as it is never wise to go out into the air immediately after the treatment. Most women are apt to go out soon after washing the face—a very bad practice. If you must do this, wash the face with cologne water, which will tighten up the pores a little, or put on a veil as a means of protection. I should be glad to send any reader a set of instructions for massaging the face if she will send me a stamped and self-addressed envelope.

The most important thing is to prevent wrinkles coming. Their causes are many. The automobile has been blamed for the almost universal appearance of wrinkles on the faces of rather young women. The first step towards removing wrinkles of this sort is steaming the face and keeping it absolutely clean, and after cleansing, adding plenty of cream. The wrinkles that come from worries are of another type. They seem to extend from the forehead to the chin—tiny, little stubborn wrinkles that only a light heart within and infinite care from without can alleviate. Then come the hard little wrinkles that form around the mouth of the woman who has many children to feed and dress with insufficient funds. It is rather difficult to offer medicine to women of the latter class, and there are many of them. Trying to make ends meet is not a pleasant way to spend a lifetime, and the lines will come—fight them as you may.

Sleep is the cheapest and best medicine for such ills. The business woman develops wrinkles because she works all day and is apt to try to keep up a social life in the evenings, thus robbing her of that great restorer of beauty. Pleasant-going women who lead idle lives can afford to curtail their hours of sleep, but the nervous, busy, energetic woman needs from eight to twelve hours out of every twenty-four.

Dane's (5961) is a popular of the most popular notes that are being sent. The design is a combination of beauty and good style, and is suitable for all occasions. It is a simple attempt. The development was in tan color, and an inner vest of heavy lace lends a charm to the waist. The skirt is one of the most attractive among the new designs. It is practical, four gore model, laid in an inverted box-pleat at each seam. The top is given close adjustment, while the lower flares in prevailing style. The lace braid, so fashionable just now, is effectively used in the trimming. Any of the light-weight silks or satins are adaptable to this design. For 36 inches bust measure 2 1/2 yards of 44 inch material will be required for the waist and 3 1/2 yards for the skirt.

Ladies' Waist with Gullup, No. 5984. Sizes for 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust measure.

Ladies' Skirt, No. 5961. Sizes for 22, 24, 26, 28, 30 and 32 inches waist measure.

This illustration calls for two separate patterns, a waist and a skirt, at 10 cents each.

The charming gown (6001-5995) shows one of the latest developments of the popular over waist, and is decidedly attractive. Deep tucks at the shoulders are stitched down a short distance in the front, while in the back they are carried down to the waistline in shawl effect. The short wide Japanese sleeves are prettily caught up by straps fastened by ornamental buttons, which are also used in the decoration of the front. The skirt is one of the newest and smartest of the season. It is a graceful five gored model and will serve nicely as a separate skirt to wear with odd waists or as part of a costume. The top is tucked to deep yoke depth, except in the front, which is left plain in panel effect. The circular flounces add a becoming flare to the lower edge, which may be in medium sweep or round length. As represented, the broadcloth was used for the making, and heavy lace laid over the black satin was used in trimming the waist. The design is also adapted to voile, taffeta and satin cloth. For 36 inches bust measure 1 1/2 yards of 44 inch material will be required for the waist and 5 1/2 yards for the skirt.

Ladies' Over-Waist, No. 6001. Sizes for 32, 34, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust measure.

Ladies' Five Gored Skirt in medium sweep or round length, and with or without the three circular flounces, No. 5995. Sizes for 22, 24, 26, 28, 30 and 32 inches waist measure.

This illustration calls for two separate patterns, for a waist and a skirt, at 10 cents each.

Address all orders to Marjorie Dane, 43 West Thirty-fourth street, New York City.

Please be sure to state size of pattern desired and write name and address plainly.

Afternoon Tea Etiquette

The question of calling or not calling after having attended an afternoon tea is one that has been answered both in the affirmative and the negative. However, it is always better to call a couple of weeks after the tea has been given. Of course, if someone has days at home the whole season and you simply drop in informally to call on one of those afternoons, that constitutes a call in itself, but if you are especially invited to an "at home" or a "tea" for one afternoon, then I would say that you owe your hostess a call, which should be paid within the month ensuing.

When issuing cards for such functions, you should send them out in sealed envelopes at least two weeks in advance. Never economize in so flagrant a way as to send out cards in unsealed envelopes which can be mailed with a one-cent stamp. You need never accept or decline in writing these invitations. If you do not attend the tea, then on the day it is given mail your card to the hostess. That is all that is necessary.

If you are asked to assist at a tea join your hostess on time, a few minutes earlier than the first hour named on the card, and wear the very prettiest house gown that you have. Unless the occasion is extremely formal, you need not wear gloves, as you will be needed to make yourself generally useful about the serving, etc. If possible, when serving wear a dainty gown that will wash, as you are apt to spill refreshments on it.

Kentucky Cold Cream. Rosewater, 4 ounces; almond oil, 4 ounces; spermaceti, 1 ounce; white wax, 1 ounce.

Orange flower water, 1/2 oz.; violet or elder flower water can be substituted at pleasure in place of rosewater, and the addition of one drachm of liniment of benzoin or one-half drachm of salicylic acid will insure the cream from becoming rancid. It should always be put in small open mouthed jars that can be tightly closed to exclude the air.

The Neckpiece and Its Selection

MEET a girl in the street yesterday dressed for a walk in a coat of cravenette and a set of ermine furs! That may not sound very dreadful as you read it, but shut your eyes and picture it to yourself. It was simply impossible. No doubt the girl had other furs, but why wear them with a raincoat? Better had she wrapped a shawl around her throat under the coat and let the furs stay peacefully at home. The girl who lives in a small town, and goes out very little in the evening, is foolish to invest in these pale shades of fur. Pieces, better try a soft piece of fur that can be worn day and night; fur is almost sure to be becoming if you select the dark shades. If your neck-piece must be of net or chiffon, then get a soft neutral color that will look well on your street suit; and if it must do duty for evening wear also, it will not look ill. Really, brown is the safest choice in either fur, net or chiffon. I know of no color that really clashes with it.

Those of you who have a fur coat that is apt to rub off on the collar of your dress should get a scarf to wear under the coat. This should be made of one of two things—either crepe de chine or china silk, both of which will wash nicely. Don't get a pale pink chiffon scarf to wear under last year's fur coat. It will make the coat look badly and the scarf a little bit worse. Get white, soft gray, tan or some other soft color, and when it is the least bit soiled, wash it out with lukewarm water and pure soap. Scarfs for this purpose should have no trimming, their only finish being a deep hem at both ends.

The great thing is to wear light neck-pieces with light and dainty clothes only; your fur pieces with your street garments; keeping always within reason. Marabout is being worn more and more, and comes in the softest possible colorings. These boas are not expensive, and the girl who cannot afford fur will be wise to turn her eyes on marabout. Net and chiffon pieces are not warm and during the cold weather are little worn except for afternoon receptions; never for general street wear. Fur, of course, is preferable to anything else at this season of the year, but if your purse allows of but one set, do not buy ermine or any light colored skin. You will be sorry if you

LETTER WRITING

ONE of the greatest aids in the business of winning hearts and holding friends is to be found in any well supplied writing desk. If, therefore, you have an eye to the best and the main chance socially, write tidily, notes. A perfect note is a very charming and very important human document indeed, and I would have all my readers understand that the pen is still mightier, not only than the sword, but mightier than the telephone, the telegraph and the typewriter, and it serves more than one useful purpose to every man and woman who is eager and hopeful of gaining true popularity.

It is a pity, and it is true, that not every man and woman is aware of the power that lies behind the pen, for there are so many of both sexes who, to speak plainly, shirk their duties as correspondents. Without realizing the injustice they do to themselves they admit that they avoid letters and notewriting wherever and whenever it is possible to do so.

I never write a note when I can use the phone, and if my friends insist upon hearing from me I dictate a page or two to my typewriter or send a wire and there I am," asserts a young gentleman, with a proud smile, as though there was something admirable in such methods, which really are not only as bad as they can be, but injurious as well to his reputation for consideration and good-breeding.

Not upon the fingers of my two hands can I count the men and women who, in his neglect of note and letter-writing, he has sorely and forever offended.

Again and again, when in doubts, in difficulties, and with his reputation for good-breeding and good-nature at stake, he has avoided sending a note and lost a dear and boon companion or the good-will of a very important acquaintance, for he belongs to that large and ever-growing class who either regard note and letter-writing as a thief of time, or to the other and equally large class who, for want of early training, do not know how to live up to the task of using their pens gracefully.

MENDING THINGS

THE most durable cement for mending china is pure white lead, ground in linseed-oil, so thick it will barely spread smoothly with a knife. Given time enough to harden—some three months—it makes a seam practically indestructible. The objection to it is that it always shows in a starting white line. A better cement for fine china is white of egg and plaster. Sift the plaster three times, and tie a generous pinch of it loosely in mosquito-netting. Then beat the egg until it will stick to the plaster. Have the broken edges very clean, cover both with the beaten egg, dust well with the plaster fit, together at once, tie, using rubber bands if possible, wrap loosely in very soft tissue-paper, and bury head and ears in the sand-box, taking care that the break lies so the weight of the sand will hold it together. Leave in the box twenty-four hours. After a week the superfluous plaster may be gently scraped away.

This answers for white and light-grounded wares. Deep colored pieces had better be mended with gin and isinglass of double strength. Some isinglass, a fair degree of warmth and moisture, and a very great deal of sunshine. To make them branch low down is often in the nature of a problem. It can be done by almost starving the plant, keeping it away from light and heat, with very little water, until all the leaves fall, save one or two at the tip. This, of course, in an early stage; say when the plant is a foot high. After the leaves have dropped, repot, giving very rich earth, set in sunshine, water freely, and fertilize every fortnight. If growth begins at the tip, tie a cord just below the bud—not tight enough to cut the bark, but to slightly compress the vessels of it. In six weeks buds will be likely to start from several of the clearances left by the fallen leaves. Rub off all that are superfluous, and give those chosen every chance to develop. By and by take off the string around the central stalk. It is no longer needed when the branches are well established, and each pushing up for itself. Wash rubber-plants a leaf at a time; they are commonly too unhandy for the bath-tub. Every month or so oil the leaves as directed for palms, but put the oil only on the lower side of the leaf.

Care of House Plants

Treat ferns exactly as you would palms, save and except the oiling. Tie up the fronds rather closely before they go in the bath, and let the pot get a soaking as well. Squares of cheesecloth or old lawn are good to tie over the pots. Set the pot in the middle of the square, and knot the ends across. The best house-ferns are the so-called "Boston" fern, the small sword fern with black stems, and the asparagus fern. The whole maiden-hair family is beautiful beyond expression, but it is idle to think of keeping them in good condition outside a fernery or a greenhouse. With a glass fern-case, the most that is needed is not to give too much water, to keep the glass always clean and clear of lint; and now and then to fertilize with dissolved bone-meal. Such a case needs to be set away from the source of heat, where it will get light, but no direct sun-rays.

The immortal of house-plants is the rubber-plant; still, there are people for whom even rubber-plants will not grow. The sturdy stocky things need plenty of pot-room, great plenty of fertilizer, a fair degree of warmth and moisture, and a very great deal of sunshine. To make them branch low down is often in the nature of a problem. It can be done by almost starving the plant, keeping it away from light and heat, with very little water, until all the leaves fall, save one or two at the tip. Nut and Cheese Sandwiches.—Mix together pot cheese and chopped hickory nuts, add to it a dash of paprika and spread on either white or brown bread.

Olives, chopped with nuts, make a nice filling; figs chopped up with nuts are delicious, while cold fish if lightly seasoned and dressed with a little mayonnaise, is appetizing.

He Loved a Thief.

[Original.]

A number of happenings conspired to give me my beloved Cecile, and the strangest of all of them was that a man whom I never saw or heard of should have crossed my path twice. Queer, isn't it, that one should be indebted to a thief for the inestimable treasure of a good wife, a wife of rare common sense, a wife capable of making a wise decision without time for consideration.

I entered my hotel in the dusk of the evening, went upstairs and was surprised to see the door of my room ajar. Quickly entering, I saw a young, well dressed woman standing in the center of the room. Near her was my trunk open—I had left it locked—and much of its contents scattered over the floor.

"Caught in the act?" I said to her. "She was as white as a sheet, and I feared she would faint. I started to push the electric button to summon others, but she caught my hand in a viselike grip. Then, putting her other hand to her heart, she tried to speak. Finally she succeeded in doing so, in a whisper:

"Don't! For heaven's sake, don't! I can't go to jail. I couldn't endure it. It would kill me. Spare me. I am innocent."

Those three words angered me. "I confess," she said presently. "Let me go."

There had been nothing of especial value in the trunk. If I should have the girl arrested I would be put to a great deal of trouble. Besides, I had not the heart to send her to prison.

"Go," I said, pointing to the door. She raised the wrist she held, kissed my hand and rushed from the room.

What was my surprise the next morning to see her leave the hotel in company with an elderly lady of apparent respectability, both getting into a private carriage.

"Who are those ladies?" I asked of the clerk of the hotel.

"Mme. Crawshaw and her daughter."

"Do you know anything about them?"

"I should say so. They always stop here when they come to the city; have stopped here for years."

It occurred to me that the girl was either a kleptomaniac or one of those people who support a respectable station by theft. The former supposition could not be correct, for only an expert could have picked the lock of my trunk. The case was so mysterious that it occupied my mind to the exclusion of everything else. The last object I saw before going to bed at night and the first thing on awakening in the morning was that terrified, imploring face. I tried to dismiss it, but it would not be dismissed. If the girl had not been a thief I should have suspected that I had fallen in love with her.

Three years passed. I had not ceased to wonder about the girl who had robbed me. Indeed, I had become infatuated with either the mystery attending the case or something remembered in her personality. I could not determine which. One day I received a letter from the chief of police of a distant city stating that a burglar had been arrested in whose lair was found many stolen articles. One was a book with my name and address on the fly leaf. The collection was open to my inspection.

The book had been in the trunk that had been rifled. I cared nothing for it, but would not the arrest of this man throw some light on the girl who had robbed me? Doubtless she was the man's accomplice. I took a train at once and on my arrival went to the police office. There were the book and several other articles of mine.

I was permitted to interview the burglar, and he told me that he had entered my room at the hotel, opened my trunk and taken what he wanted. He left without being discovered. He knew nothing of the girl I had found in my room and had no accomplice.

My next move was to write to the hotel where I had been robbed and ask for the address of Mme. Crawshaw. In due time I received it and one morning called at an eminently respectable residence and sent up my card to Miss Crawshaw. When she came down and saw me she smiled and caught at the back of a chair.

"Don't fear me. I have called to say that I am convinced of your innocence. The man who robbed me has been arrested, and in his possession articles of mine contained in the trunk which have been found. I am here to right a wrong. And now will you explain your presence in my room?"

She clasped her hands, raised her eyes and exclaimed, "My God, I thank thee!"

At the moment she appeared to me very beautiful, but I know not if my long interest in her had not heightened love and love had not made me see her as I did. Then she gave me the explanation, which was very simple. In going to her room, which was next to mine, she had entered mine instead of her own. She was looking about her bewildered when I entered. Realizing her situation, she was appalled. Believing that to confess and throw herself on my mercy would be her best chance, she did so. In this she was right.

This is how I came to know Cecile and know of that ability for quick, wise decisions which she has since so often shown. But the fact remains that I loved her when I supposed her to be a thief.

How to Buy Good Bananas.
When you are buying bananas never purchase the long thin ones unless you want fruit which will pucker your mouth. No matter how well ripened these thin bananas are, they will always be found both sour and acid. This is because the bunch containing them was packed too soon. The banana grows faster at first in length. When it has reached its fullest development in that direction it suddenly begins to swell and in a few days will double its girth. It is at the end of this time that the banana is ripened naturally, and the effort of the banana importer is to have the fruit picked at the last moment and yet before the last ripening has progressed even enough to tinge the bright green of the fruit with yellow. A difference of twenty-four hours on the trees at this time will make a difference in the weight of the fruit, perhaps 25 per cent, and all the difference in its final taste and the

CARE OF THE TEETH.
How to Brush Them Properly and Save Dentists' Bills.
To have pretty, strong teeth is, or should be, an important matter to all women, and if through neglect as a child discolorations and filling are in evidence the problem is a difficult one. Of all the rules and regulations laid down by experts and all the powders and washes on the market or to be made at home none is so important as regular care. If a child has been brought up to brush her teeth regularly and often and continues to do so, she would need nothing but clear water to have "pearls" of which novelists dream. But acids more or less harmful and bleaches are expected in later years to make up for lack of attention in the past and often in the present.

Astonishingly few persons know how to brush their teeth. This may seem a remarkable statement, but one may demonstrate it the next time a brush is used. It is rubbed across the teeth instead of up and down, and a moment's thought will show that rubbing across will clear the middle or flat surface, but the edges or curves are left absolutely untouched, runs an article in the New York Telegram. The motion should always be from the gums down to the tips on the upper jaw and from the gums up on the lower. In this way, and this way only, are particles removed from between the teeth and the whole surface gone over. Added to this dental floss should be used—soft coarse silk that is drawn back and forth between the teeth at the base, bringing out obstructions too small or too far in for any brush to reach. Floss should be used after each meal and always at night. Many a dentist's bill would be saved in this way.

The whole question of the Seventy-seventh General Assembly is more important than the question of the apportionment. While no one would lose of representation in the present legislature, the question of the future of the state is at stake. The present legislature is asserting its right to be its own successor, the question of the future of the state is at stake. The present legislature is asserting its right to be its own successor, the question of the future of the state is at stake. The present legislature is asserting its right to be its own successor, the question of the future of the state is at stake.

That there will be no change in the organization of either branch is now a foregone conclusion. Freeman T. Eagleton, representative of Guernsey county, now speaker pro tem, will be elected to fill the vacancy caused by the retirement of Speaker Thompson to become secretary of state. There are several candidates for the vacancy which will result from the retirement of Mr. Eagleton. The most important change in the committees of the house will be selection of chairman of the finance committee, where a vacancy exists through the appointment of Mr. Baldwin of Ashtabula, chairman last session, to the board of public works. Representative Lersch of Lorain county will probably succeed to that chairmanship.

Some use may be found for a portion of the surplus in the state treasury by erecting an annex to the state house or a separate building elsewhere, to accommodate state officials not now provided with offices in the state house nor in the supreme court building. The state is paying rent for offices in private buildings for some of its departments. Senator Crist of Columbiana county has in contemplation a bill to provide quarters for all by an addition to the state house or by erecting or purchasing a building adjacent to the capitol for that purpose. With a surplus of over $6,000,000 in the state treasury, and no state debt, he cannot see why the state should be a tenant of the owners of outside buildings, paying sums in big rentals.

Governor Harris is putting the finishing touches on his message to the legislature. It will cover the usual details of the state's affairs and urge economy in the state's finances. What the message will contain on the subject of taxation may be anticipated from the work of the state tax commission. More speculative interest centers on what the governor may or may not say about county local option in his message, which is bound to be an acute issue of the session. The Anti-Saloon league looks to the governor's rulings in behalf of the Aiken tax bill when that measure was before the senate, as an encouraging omen. The Ohio brewers having begun a crusade against disreputable resorts also have hope. Louis Wehner of Dayton who succeeds the late Joe Miller as field marshal of the Ohio brewers, is conducting the anti-dive crusade for the brewers and will be in Miller's place as legislative agent while the legislature is in session.

In response to the growing demand for uniform divorce legislation, growing out of the meetings of the divorce congress at Philadelphia, Governor Harris will send to the legislature a special message on the divorce question. A bill framed along suggested lines was left with the governor by the Ohio commission on uniform laws consisting of Francis B. James of Cincinnati, H. B. Arnold of Columbus and Seth S. Wheeler of Lima. The proposed statute provides for divorce from bed and board, and absolute divorce shall not be in effect until one year from date of the decree. The bill will follow the proposed uniform divorce congress' measure in detail.

There are several candidates for the vacancy which will result from the retirement of Mr. Eagleton. Representative Lersch of Lorain county will probably succeed to that chairmanship.

As previously stated, all opinionating may have to be settled finally by the supreme court before the legislature can proceed intelligently and with safety. But there is scarcely a doubt that whatever may be done about the extension of term, or the salary involved, the calendar will be cleared by resolution, and that all proceedings will be begun anew, that members may desire to save from the mass of unfinished business of last session.

The apportionment problem is more serious, and on it the whole structure of the coming session may finally stand or fall, because the determination of the proper numerical prefix with which to designate the session of the winter of 1908 will materially affect the apportionment for the legisla-

R. N. of A.
The regular meeting of Daisy camp No. 2574 was held Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock with a good attendance. The rush of Christmas being over all the members are anxious to work for a large growth for the coming year. Our brother lodge the M. W. of A. of this city having the largest camp in the state is the desire of Daisy camp to make the coming year a record year. The Daisy camp was organized six years ago last March with 25 charter members and have only lost 3 by death. We now number 135 members with a large class to go in on January 23. At the last meeting the charter was drawn for Neighbor Catherine Smith, who died December 23, 1907. This neighbor has been a member for a year and had a certificate for $1000 which was paid in full as soon as the death proofs are made out. Let all neighbors turn out next meeting and help boost for the growth of the order.

Modern Woodmen.
Cedar Camp No. 4727 M. W. of A. met in regular session on Monday night with all officers and a good attendance of the membership present. Eleven applications for membership were received and balloted upon and elected to membership. The escrow retired and found in waiting Ray F. Sheppard, Silas J. Kelley, Charles Willes and Benjamin A. Miller, who were adopted as members of Cedar Camp. Neighbor Henthorne, the clerk of Alexandria camp was present at the meeting and said that there was a good crowd coming to the meeting on January 6, and reports have been received from the other camps in the county and a large attendance is expected. On that night the beneficial degree only will be conferred and a fancy drill will be team will be given. Committees have night and every neighbor that can is appointed to serve lunch on that expected to be at this meeting, it being the 25th anniversary of the Modern Woodmen of America.

Neighbors we are nearing the 1200 beneficial member mark and we only need a few more members and we will have 1200 beneficial members. place on the night of January 16 will be one of the biggest spreads that have been given by Cedar camp to the members who bustle for the camp. You have the same chance as those yet remain 19 days for you to get a new member and get in on the turkey supper. At Monday night's meeting Neighbor F. M. O'Hara made a boast that the Forester team could not put either him or Neighbor Gus Hucks on the goat in five minutes' time, and the team has taken him up on the proposition and at the next meeting of the camp on Monday night the team will give these two neighbors a work out. Come to the next meeting of the camp and see the fun. Also neighbors, remember it will be the last meeting in the year 1907, and you should be there. There is no assessment for the month of January 1908.

RESOLUTIONS OF RESPECT.
At the regular meeting of Cedar camp, No. 4727, Modern Woodmen of America, held on Monday night, December 23, 1907, the following resolution were adopted:

Whereas, in view of the loss we have sustained by the death of our neighbor, Harry Davis, who died December 11, 1907, and by the still heavier loss sustained by those who were nearest and dearest to him;

Resolved, that we sincerely condole with the family of our deceased neighbor on the dispensation with which it has pleased Divine Providence to afflict them and commend them for condolence to him who orders all things for the best, and whose chastisements are meant in mercy.

Resolved, that the heartfelt testimony of our sympathy and sorrow be spread upon the records of the camp and a copy be presented to the family of our departed neighbor and be published in the daily papers.

Three applications for membership were received. Ticket No. 251 drew the watch raffled off by the tribe, and if the number is not presented by Friday, January 4, another number will be drawn.

He Loved a Thief.

(Original.)
A number of happenings conspired to give me my beloved Cecile, and the strangest of all of them was that a man whom I never saw or heard of should have crossed my path twice. Queer, isn't it, that one should be indebted to a thief for the inestimable treasure of a good wife, a wife of rare common sense, a wife capable of making a wise decision without time for consideration.

I entered my hotel in the dusk of the evening, went upstairs and was surprised to see the door of my room ajar. Quickly entering, I saw a young, well dressed woman standing in the center of the room. Near her was my trunk open. I had left it locked and much of its contents scattered over the floor.

"Caught in the act!" I said to her. "She was as white as a sheet, and I feared she would faint. I started to push the electric button to summon others, but she caught my hand in a viselike grip. Then, putting her other hand to her heart, she tried to speak. Finally she succeeded in doing so in a whisper:

"Don't! For heaven's sake, don't! I can't go to jail. I couldn't endure it. It would kill me. Spare me. I am innocent."

The last three words angered me. "Innocent!" I exclaimed. "You are adding a lie to a theft?"

Her lips lightened spasmodically on my wrist.

"I confess," she said presently. "Let me go."

There had been nothing of especial value in the trunk. If I should have the girl arrested I would be put to a great deal of trouble. Besides, I had not the heart to send her to prison.

"Go," I said, pointing to the door.

She raised the wrist she held, kissed my hand and rushed from the room.

What was my surprise the next morning to see her leave the hotel in company with an elderly lady of apparent respectability, both getting into a private carriage.

"Who are those ladies?" I asked of the clerk of the hotel.

"Mme. Crawshaw and her daughter."

"Do you know anything about them?"

"I should say so. They always stop here when they come to the city; have stopped here for years."

It occurred to me that the girl was either a kleptomaniac or one of those people who support a respectable station by theft. The former supposition could not be correct, for only an expert could have picked the lock of my trunk. The case was so mysterious that it occupied my mind to the exclusion of everything else. The last object I saw before going to bed at night and the first thing on awakening in the morning was that terrified, imploring face. I tried to dismiss it, but it would not be dismissed. If the girl had not been a thief I should have suspected that I had fallen in love with her.

Three years passed. I had not con-ed to wonder about the girl who had robbed me. Indeed, I had become infatuated with either the mystery attending the case or something remembered in her personality. I could not determine which. One day I received a letter from the chief of police of a distant city stating that a burglar had been arrested in whose lair was found many stolen articles. One was a book with my name and address on the fly leaf. The collection was open to my inspection.

The book had been in the trunk that had been rifled. I cared nothing for it, but would not the arrest of this man throw some light on the girl who had robbed me? Doubtless she was the man's accomplice. I took a train at once and on my arrival went to the police office. There were there several other articles of mine.

I was permitted to interview the burglar, and he told me that he had entered my room at the hotel, opened my trunk and taken what he wanted. He left without being discovered. He knew nothing of the girl I had found in my room and had no accomplice.

My next move was to write to the hotel where I had been robbed and ask for the address of Mme. Crawshaw. In due time I received it and one morning called at an eminently respectable residence and sent my card to Miss Crawshaw. When she came down and saw me she smiled and caught at the back of a chair.

"Don't fear me. I have called to say that I am convinced of your innocence. The man who robbed me has been arrested, and in his possession articles of mine contained in the trunk rifled have been found. I am here to right a wrong. And now will you explain your presence in my room?"

She clasped her hands, raised her eyes and exclaimed, "My God, I thank thee!"

At the moment she appeared to me very beautiful, but I know better my long interest in her had not begotten love and she had not made me see her as I did. Then she gave me the explanation, which was very simple. Intending to her room, which was next to mine, she had entered mine instead of her own. She was looking about her bewildered when I entered. Realizing her situation, she was appalled. He lying that to confess and throw herself on my mercy would be her best chance, she did so. In this she was right.

This is how I came to know Cecile and know of that ability for quick wise decisions which she has since so often shown. But the fact remains that I loved her when I supposed her to be a thief.

How to Buy Good Bananas.

When you are buying bananas never purchase the long thin ones unless you want fruit which will pucker your mouth. No matter how well ripened these thin bananas are, they will always be found both sour and acid. This is because the bunch containing them was packed too soon. The banana grows faster at first in length.

When it has reached its fullest development in that direction it suddenly begins to swell and in a few days will double its width. It is at the end of this time that the banana is ripened naturally, and the effort of the banana importer is to have the fruit picked at the last moment and yet before the last ripening has progressed even enough to tinge the bright green of the fruit with yellow. A difference of twenty-four hours on the trees at this time will make a difference in the weight of the fruit, perhaps 25 per cent, and all the difference in its final flavor between a puckery sour and the sweetness and smoothness which are characteristic of the ripe fruit.

CARE OF THE TEETH.

How to Brush Them Properly and Save Dentists' Bills.

To have pretty, strong teeth is, or should be, an important matter to all women, and if through neglect as a child discolorations and filling are in evidence the problem is a difficult one. Of all the rules and regulations laid down by experts and all the powders and washes on the market or to be made at home none is so important as regular care. If a child has been brought up to brush her teeth regularly and often and continues to do so, she would need nothing but clear water to have "pearls" of which novelists dream. But girls more or less hard less and bleaches are expected in later years to make up for lack of attention in the past and often in the present.

Astonishingly few persons know how to brush their teeth. This may seem a remarkable statement, but one may demonstrate it the next time a brush is used. It is rubbed across the teeth instead of up and down, and a moment's thought will show that rubbing across will clear the middle or flat surface, but the edges or curves are left absolutely untouched. runs an article in the New York Telegram. The motion should always be from the gums down to the tips of the upper jaw and from the gums up on the lower. In this way, and this way only, are particles removed from between the teeth and the whole surface gone over. Added to this dental floss should be used—soft coarse silk that is drawn back and forth between the teeth at the base, bringing out obstructions too small or too far in for any brush to reach. Floss should be used after each meal and always at night. Many a dentist's bill would be saved in this way.

The postoffice employees are glad that Christmas comes but once a year. They have certainly been the busy ones of the past week and now that the day on which thousands upon thousands of presents are exchanged has passed, things will probably assume their normal condition.

Assistant Postmaster Seigfried informed an Advocate representative that the stamp sale for Saturday, Monday and Tuesday, amounted to $329.13. This was an increase over last year of a couple of hundred dollars. The money order receipts for the month, including Thursday, Dec. 25, amounted to $19,574.33, the fees of which were $137.22. This certainly indicates that some money left the city, which probably made some one happy on Christmas day. For the month of December last year $18,325.85 was forwarded from the local office. Already the money order receipts for this month exceed those of the same month last year by $1,248.48 and there are still four days left which will probably increase the amount several hundred dollars more.

to sell for future delivery at low prices, as they are confident of better conditions before the new year is far advanced.

One large trunk line has filed specifications for 20,000 tons of standard rails for delivery early next year, beginning in January, and there is a notable increase in negotiations for rails on the part of railroads. In finished lines the market does not show much change. The coke situation has improved and furnace interests have made some purchases for delivery throughout the coming year. ## ZANESVILLE HOLDS CANTON FRANCHISE

Secures It and Players Free of Charge and Official Notification Has Been Given.

There seems to be a bit of confusion in neighboring baseball circles over the agreement Zanesville had with the P. O. M. League and the agreement she now has with the Central league, says the Zanesville Signal. In the first place Zanesville had a one-year agreement with the P. O. M. league, by the terms of which she could withdraw by simply giving notice to the league directors. That's simple enough and we're out of that league, which has no right to our territory.

Now as to the second matter. The directors of the Zanesville Baseball company and President Carson and Secretary-Treasurer W. W. Irwin of Wheeling signed an agreement to transfer the Canton franchise and players free of charge to this city. Secretary Farrell was also notified by the Central league people that this territory was now held by them.

This is all apparently simple enough, but there are a lot who do not understand it, hence they are saying that Canton is now demanding $3,500 for its outfit and Zanesville will appeal to the Central league to fix the price. All of which is pure rot.

ED STREAR'S STATEMENT

Editor Advocate: I wish to state that I had a warrant issued before Mayor McCleery for the arrest of S. K. Hayes, some days ago, on a charge of using profane language and an attempted assault. I dropped the matter rather than go to the expense of a trial.

The true statement of facts is that I am a B. and O. caller and my duties take me all over the city. On this particular night I was assigned to call Fireman Waymyre for train 99. Mr. Waymyre is registered on the books at the office as living in room No. 60, Buckeye club rooms. I went to this room and knocked on the door and I was told that Waymyre was not in that room but was in room 63, across the hall. I went there and called Mr. Waymyre and at the end of the hall way street Hayes, and because he was disturbed in his slumbers, I presume, he was "sore." At any rate, he used toward me the foulest language he could lay his tongue to and threatened to assault me if I ever came up there again. He is a man who weighs over 200 pounds while I tip the scales at about 150. This disparity in our size makes it apparent that I would have no chance in a physical encounter with him but I merely want to let the people know the true facts in the case, which have not been published before.

TAX MESSAGE BY COMMISSION FOR LEGISLATURE

GOVERNOR WILL TRANSMIT THE REPORT EARLY IN THE SESSION.

Revenues Are Discussed—Representative Bense on Local Option—Candidates.

Columbus, Dec. 28.—The Tax Commission of Ohio has handed its report to Governor Harris, who will transmit it to the legislature early in January.

One thing that stands out prominently in the report is the recommendation for the enactment of an inheritance tax. Although the state's revenues are more than enough now to pay expenses, the governor is taking time by the forelock and wants to have some tax scheme that will fill up a hole in revenues derived from the Dow tax are reduced because of the passage of a county local option law.

It was because of this situation that the Tax Commission recommends the enactment of an inheritance tax law. Such a law will not bring in money enough to make up for the losses sustained by the passage of a county local option bill, but it will be a starter.

The Tax Commission may recommend the extension of the Nichols law to all corporations. Now only telephone, telegraph and express companies pay taxes under the Nichols law. Its extension to all corporations of course will raise a howl for nobody pays taxes without a growl—and when this charge of the state is raised there is more than a growl. If the Nichols law is extended to all corporations it will be in anticipation of a heavy decrease in tax revenues caused by the enactment of a county local option law. The extension would include manufacturing and mercantile corporations as well as public service corporations; and of course these interests will fight such a proposition.

The friends of a county local option bill are afraid of just this angle in the situation. They are fearful that a discussion of state finances in connection with the local option bill will militate against the success of the latter, and in this they are accredited with being most sagacious. There is but little doubt that many manufacturers, merchants and public service corporations would take an active stand against the local option proposition if they knew that the passage of such a law meant an increase of taxes. That is what the opponents of the measure are trying to show.

Whatever may be the attitude of the Anti-Saloon League or the brewery interests on the revenue proposition, it is true that the Tax Commission has considered the question and recommended an inheritance tax and an extension of the Nichols law in the event that the state's revenues are cut down in any other way.

Governor Harris is not overly modest right now about letting his opinions be known as to the length of the coming session of the general assembly. He favors a short session. He is afraid that the big surplus in the state treasury—now more than seven millions—will tempt the legislators to become extravagant and for that reason he wants them to get away early.

Intimation that a bill decreeing Ohio a prohibition state and a second bill forbidding the sale of whisky within the commonwealth, but permitting the vending of beer under the option of towns and districts as provided in the Dow, Aiken, Beall and Jones laws, will be introduced in the coming session of the Ohio legislature, has been voiced by Representative Howard W. Pears of Lima, says the Toledo Blade.

Discussion of the first measure, it is said, has extended so far that a program for submitting a prohibition bill, with a referendum clause whereby a vote of the state might be obtained, has been tentatively decided on.

Of the second bill it is argued that a law barring whisky from the state, but permitting the sale of beer and lighter liquors, would do away with the clamor against strong drink and leave to the liberal element its beverages.

The intimation that such bills were in process of preparation was contained in an interview in which Mr. Pears declared the passage of the Rose county option bill was not nearly so assured as public utterances of late would indicate.

"I have met a number of senators, and members of the lower house, too, who have been reported as supporters of Senator Rose's bill, who tell me they are not pledged in any way and, indeed, have not made up their minds in the matter," said Mr. Pears.

Mr. Pears went on to say that the financial consideration involved will play a big part in the legislature, pointing to the loss in revenue which would follow the closing of many saloons, as would be the result under the Rose bill, if enacted into law.

Candidates for places on the Republican state ticket are making themselves known, now that it is decided that the state convention will be held at an early date.

An interesting situation develops in the matter and it is one that is giving Republican leaders much concern. The prominent candidates for the several state offices are either men who want to succeed themselves, or men who have been chief assistants in the respective offices, and who want to succeed their "bosses." A survey of the situation shows that the present governor will be a candidate to succeed himself; the member of the board of public works whose term expires, wants a third term; the chief deputy in the office of the state auditor wants to succeed to the captaincy of the splendid machine the present auditor has built up in 20 years; the cashier in the state treasurer's office is ambitious to succeed his chief; the chief clerk in the school commissioner's office wants to assume the reins of that department; the special counsel in the attorney general's office is after the title and emoluments, that make the state's legal adviser a notable figure—and it is this situation suggesting "bossism" and "machine candidates" that makes troublesome hours for the party leaders.

There have been many conferences during the past few days looking to a clearing up of the situation and very shortly an announcement is expected that will clear up the whole matter. Some one or two of the machine-made candidates will be eliminated by common consent and new candidates will appear who will not bear the stigma of "boss" and "machine."

In an open letter Representative W. E. Bense of Ottawa county has made public his views as to proposed legislation concerning county local option in the next legislature. Mr. Bense is a leading member of the house committee on temperance. His letter in part is as follows:

"At one time I was in favor of county local option, for the reason that I favored submitting all questions touching local government to the people affected, provided that they demanded such submission.

"Upon more mature consideration I have come to the conclusion that county local option is not in conformity with the spirit of direct legislation, because the unit of a county is so large that electors of a county would vote upon this subject and thereby control territory beyond their local interest. On the other hand, a county is not large enough a unit to produce uniformity of conditions of adjacent territory. In other words, it would do away with home rule."

After citing specific instances, Mr. Bense's letter continues:

"There is as much intercourse and competition, and often more, between towns lying in different counties as there is between towns lying in the same county."

"We have laws allowing townships, villages and cities to vote, each separately, upon the question whether or not liquor as a beverage may be sold in their respective territories, and for towns we have the residence local option law."

"All these laws are based strictly upon the theory of home rule, which is the underlying principle of direct legislation."

"The strongest argument in favor of making the county the unit relative to the liquor traffic is because taxes are levied by the county for the support of the dependents and infirmaries, and that criminal jurisdiction is co-extensive to a county."

"This is true, but the great expense and burden of the evils arising from the traffic of intoxicating liquor is borne by the towns and the state."

"In comparison with the expenses borne by the villages, cities and state, that of the counties is infinitesimal."

"I want to point out that the question is not whether one is in favor of dry or wet, for a county, but it is whether or not a county is a proper unit to submit to its electors the question whether or not liquor to be used as a beverage may be sold."

"In considering this question, let it not be forgotten that conditions and not sentiments must be dealt with."

Former Lieutenant Governor Harding announces that he will not be a candidate for governor. In making the announcement the former lieutenant governor took occasion to say that Forakerism was sweeping the state. He says nothing can stop him. The Taft forces do not appear to be greatly excited over the statement.

One of the big railroad systems of the state has added a new line of literature to its erstwhile figure-laden time tables. This railroad takes occasion to quote from a message of former Governor Myron T. Herrick. Under the caption, "Too Much Thoughtless Legislation," the ex-governor is quoted in part as follows:

"It is high time that we cease to litter our books with measures that restrict and give it a form so rigid as to be unsuited to natural development, dwarfing growth and hampering individual initiative, and confine our attention to the removal of excrement growth, and the passage of such legislation as will keep pace with the quickened evolution of the times, permitting and aiding the country to progress freely along the lines that have been so prolific of good in the past. Just at present the outcry is loudest against the corporations doing an interstate business—particularly the railroads. Unfortunately, however, our lawmakers are being driven by thoughtless agitation into the enactment of much hasty and ill-advised legislation—injurious to the free development of railroads."

TRAINING OF CHILDREN.

How to Lead Them Aright and Counteract Bad Habits.

The child's tendencies should be carefully watched, and everything in him which appears vicious or unpleasant

If a child is careless of his toys and breaks and defaces them, the proper punishment is to take them from him and say he cannot have them for a certain period of time, and then give them to him when he promises to take care of them. It is bad policy to be

If a child is cruel and domineering to its little associates, it should be sternly reprovcd and taught to behave gently and humbly. Boys should be taught to be tender and chivalrous to all, and to be courteous and respectful to all.

ters. Children who treat their pets roughly and cruelly should be deprived of them. No right minded person places a little helpless dumb creature in the power of young children who are cruel through ignorance or through a vicious nature. The treatment of pets should be watched by the mothers of children having them. Be careful how you criticise the efforts of the children. The clipped wing never grows again. Make it a matter of conscience never to mislead a child, for he is a traveler newly arrived from a strange country. Allow him as his world widens to have opinions of his own; let him be a personality, not a mere echo. Make your home the center of attraction to your children; let them feel drawn to you and it, like the needle to the pole. Respect the secrets of your children, but do not worry them to confide in you.

How to Promote a Child's Appetite.

To promote a child's appetite give it plenty of outdoor exercise. Make its habits regular and give it nothing but plain, wholesome food. Rich cake, pickles, condiments and made dishes are not fit for children, and indulgence in them will spoil the appetite for plainly cooked food. A warm bath with an ounce of sea salt is almost as strual as a nap. Let the child puddle in the water until it cools and dry with a rough towel. In case of whooping cough a milk diet often is necessary. Two or three pints may be taken daily, but not much at a time should be given. Vomiting often is a serious complication in this disease, but however unwilling a child may be to take

Food he must be made to do so in order to keep up his strength. If the vomiting be severe solids are better than food in a liquid form. The teeth should be cleaned all over. Cleansing the mouth should be practiced after every meal, and the child will have strong teeth.

To crystallize flowers construct some baskets of fancy form with pliable copper wire and wrap them with gauze. Into these tie to the bottom violets, ferns and geranium leaves—in fact, any flowers except full bloom roses—and sink them in a solution of alum of one pound to a gallon of water after the solution has cooled. The colors will then be preserved in their original beauty, and the crystallized album will hard faster than when from a hot solution. When you have a light covering of crystals that completely covers the articles, remove the basket carefully and allow to drip for twelve hours. These baskets make a beautiful paper ornament and for a beautiful

How to Treat a Jammed Finger.
The finger should be plunged into water as hot as can possibly be borne. This application of hot water causes the nail to expand and soften, and the blood pouring out beneath it has more room to flow. Thus the pain is lessened. The finger should then be wrapped in a bread and water poultice. A jammed finger should never be neglected, as it may lead to mortification of the bone if it has been badly crushed, and amputation of the finger must follow. Jammed toes are usually caused through the falling of heavy weights

How to Prepare Pineapple.
To prepare a pineapple for eating cut off the top and bottom. Quarter the pineapple lengthwise, and cut off the hard core. With plated fork and large spoon scratch and scrape the pull from the shell. As a result you will have a pulpy, juicy mass for your table, instead of the hard slices or mumps usually served, and the scraped shell in your hand will hold the troublesome eyes and what will astonish you perhaps, a mass of long, thread-like, indigestible fibers.

The Magic No. 3.
Number three is a wonderful mascot for George H. Parris, of Cedar Grove, Me., according to a letter which reads: "After suffering much with liver and kidney trouble, and becoming greatly discouraged by the failure to find relief, I tried Electric Bitters, and as a result I am a well man today. The first bottle relieved and three bottles completed the cure." Guaranteed best on earth for stomach, liver and kidney troubles, by F. D. Hall, druggist. 50c.
